THE HAND HECUBA

By BARONESS VON HUTTEN, author of "Pam," "Our Lady of the Beeches," etc. 12mo, Ornamental Cloth, $1.50

THIS is the strongest novel that this well-known author has ever written. It deals with the fascinations of a volatile Spanish woman, and the pride and passions of a minister of the gospel. Two wonderful characters are Lord and Lady Yarrow, and there is a good little rector, Yarrow's uncle. The novel is optimistic, strong, bright, and true.

REBECCA MARY

By Annie Hamilton Donnell

In depicting the sedate little Rebecca Mary, Mrs. Donnell has created a new "heroine of fiction," who will appeal to all grown-ups. All the charm of quaint old New England, with its delicate fragrance of box and lavender, lingers in this volume, while every one who loves and studies children will appreciate Mrs. Donnell's wonderfully acute knowledge of child-psychology and her art in the delineation of child-life. With eight illustrations in color by Elizabeth Shippen Green.

Post 8vo, ornamented cloth, $1.50

THE ISLAND OF ENCHANTMENT

By Justus Miles Forman

"The Island of Enchantment" is the story of a great passion in the days when love came at a glance or touch, and courtship was unknown. Unusual care has been taken to make it perfect in binding, printing, and general make-up. Full-page illustrations in color by Howard Pyle, and marginal decorations in tint render the volume a sumptuous example of modern book-making.

Crown 8vo, ornamented cloth, gilt top, untrimmed edges, in a box, $1.75

THE PASSPORT

By Richard Bagot

"A romance of modern Italian life to which a charming old-world touch has been added by placing the scene in a mediæval castle at Montefiano, a little hill town. The story tells how two suave and wily villains, Donna Bianca's step-uncle, Baron d'Antin, and the Abbé Roux, plot together—Baron d'Antin to obtain Bianca's hand, the Abbé to retain his control over her estate.

Post 8vo, ornamented cloth, $1.50

CORTÉS CONQUEROR OF MEXICO

By Frederick A. Ober

In addition to the stirring story of the conquest of Mexico, there is a valuable account of what Cortés met with in his progress through the country—customs of the Mexicans and barbarous forms of worship. It is, however, Hernando Cortés, brave, light-hearted, and unscrupulous, seeking gold through massacre or subtle strategy, who dominates the book. Mr. Ober is a well-known authority on Spanish and Mexican history, and the present volume is admirably suited to juvenile readers as well as adults.

IMPORTANT FALL BOOKS

THE REIGN OF GILT

By

DAVID GRAHAM PHILLIPSAuthor of the PLUM TREE

Price, $1.00 net

Postage, 12 cents

THE book is an arraignment of the American idolatry of wealth. It is a stirring denunciation of "the worship of the golden calf," but also an inspiring piling-up of argument to show that in spite of money influences wholly antagonistic to the democratic ideals of simplicity and equality on which the republic was founded, our final adherence to those ideals is inevitable.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have published this week "Knock at a Venture," by Eden Phillpotts; "Sporting Sketches," by Edwyn Sandys; "G. F. Watts: Reminiscences," by Mrs. Russell Barrington; a new and cheaper edition of "Old English Love Songs," edited by Hamilton W. Mabie, illustrated by George Wharton Edwards; and a new edition in one volume of "Sir George Tressady," by Mrs. Humphry Ward. They will bring out next week "The Fair Maid at Graystones," by Miss Beulah Marie Dix. Most of the action takes place at a great country house called Graystones, in England, during the wars between Roundhead and Cavalier.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS publish this week a work entitled "The Use of the Scriptures in Theology," by Dr. William Newton Clarke, a popular Bible help for students, preachers and the ordinary reader; "Telling Bible Stories," by Louise Seymour Houghton, who writes from an essentially liberal standpoint and shows how necessary knowledge and love of the Bible is in the formation of child character; "The Success of Defeat," by Dr. Maltbie D. Babcock, a helpful and encouraging essay full of the strength of purpose and beauty of expression; a new and cheaper edition of "Reminiscences of the Civil War," by General John B. Gordon; also, "Old Provence," by T. A. Cook, already fully described by us.

DODD, MEAD & Co. publish to-day McCutcheon's new novel, "Nedra;" "The Edge of Circumstance," a new novel by Edward Noble; "Sunrise Acres," a novel by Benjamin Bruce; "French Profiles," a volume of critical and appreciative essays on modern French authors, by Edmund Gosse; also, "Patty in the City," a new book for young people by Carolyn Wells, all of which have already been fully described by us. They will soon issue "A Life of Charles Dickens," by Gilbert K. Chesterton, author of "Varied Types." There are few men whose position in English literature is more fiercely disputed than that of Charles Dickens. Mr. Chesterton's contribution to the controversy is bound to be novel and worthy of attention.

McCLURE, PHILLIPS & Co. publish to-day Eugene Wood's humorous sketches of American village life under the title of "Back Home." Mr. Wood writes of such things characteristic of American rural communities as "The Little Red Schoolhouse," "The Sabbath School," "The Firemen's Tournament," "The Swimming Hole," "Circus Day" and "The County Fair." His humorous touch and his faculty for sympathetic caricature put him in the class of humorists that contains Mark Twain, Bill Nye and Eugene Field. They have also just ready a new book by Charles Wagner, entitled "Justice," in which the author points out that it is not only necessary to live the simple life, but also to live the upright life, and that we must consider justice not only in regard to our fellow man, but also in regard to ourselves; also, an interesting volume of travel entitled "A Commercial Traveller in South America," by Frank Wiborg, of the large firm of ink manufacturers, Ault & Wiborg, who last year found it necessary for business reasons to make a trip through South America. The book is a chatty and enertaining record of his experiences during this trip, but is also valuable as containing the observations of an experienced American business man on trade conditions and the markets of South America. They have postponed the publication of "The Pang Yanger," by Elma A. Travis, and the "Portfolio of Bird Portraits," by Bruce Horsfall, text by W. E. D. Scott, recently announced for publication September 16.

It does, however, undertake to lay before the minds of sincere students many of the cardinal guidances to that end. In the light of our needs to-day, it presents what seem to be the most needed elements of guidance."

- The colonel's "dream" was to return to the South, to his childhood's home, and live among old friends, helping them with his money and with his experience. He had been in the Southern army, but came north at the close of the war, making a fortune there. The time is in the early '90's, Colonel Henry French, not yet an old man, and still a very attractive one, just having retired from business. He goes South, to the small town, where he was born, and spends several months there. At first he is charmed with the cordiality and hospitality extended to him, and the quiet, simple life. By degrees his eyes are opened, through both dramatic and amusing experiences, to the true condition of the South, the backwardness of its people in thought and action, etc. His "dream" has a sudden and unexpected ending.

"The present volume is intended as a handbook for investigators and for advanced students of ecology, and not as a text-book of the subject. An elementary text-book covering the same field, but adapted to the needs of undergraduate students, is in preparation. The handbook is essentially an account of the methods used by the author in his studies of the last eight years, during which a serious attempt has been made to discover and to correlate the fundamental points of view in the vast field of vegetation. No endeavor is made to treat any portion of the subject exhaustively, since a discussion of general methods and general principles is of much greater value in the present condition of ecology."—Preface. "Heather Flower" discovers his duplicity and swears revenge, in which she is aided by her tribe.

The unscrupulous attempt of an Italian priest to convert to Romanism an American artist and his wife, and so obtain the fortune of the latter for his church is the leading motive of a story with an Italian background. His instrument in his wicked plans is a fascinating singer, over whom he has some unexplained power. He brings her in contact with the artist who wants a model for a picture of spring he is painting, and with the wife who is a brilliant musician, and commands her to weave her web around them. The conflict between these various natures is well depicted, the ending being most unexpected and tragical.

Lord Byron's early love for his cousin, Mary Chasworth, is the subject of this novel. His first meeting with her, when both are but boy and girl, is described in the opening chapters; his discovery that she is about to marry another man, their separation and his despair follow. Afterward he is shown as the idol of London society, in love with Lady Caroline Lamb, and the centre of a circle of great literary lights in which Madame De Stael, Moore, Sheridan and many others equally famous are included. The book ends with Byron's meeting again with Mary Chasworth and their premeditated elopement, with the tragedy that prevents it.

He becomes involved with a common Breton girl, who throws herself on his mercy and for whom he sacrifices everything. The years bring poverty and disgrace from which he is at last rescued by his sister who has been the one good influence in his life. The scenes are laid in Brittany and in New York. The time covered by the story is the hundred days between Napoleon's escape from Elbe and his triumphant return to Paris, and his defeat at Waterloo. Napoleon appears several times in the story, but the narrative is confined chiefly to the adventures of an English officer, who has sought sanctuary in France, after a duel, in which he believes he has killed his adversary, and a beautiful French girl belonging to a prominent Bourbon family, who has incurred the enmity of her relatives through her devotion to Napoleon, whom she serves in the disguise of a man, in carrying important papers, etc. She has many thrilling escapes and adventures in which the Englishman plays a part.

A Jacobite officer fleeing from Scotland after the battle of Culloden, chances to see a pretty face in the inn and at once throws prudence to the winds in his determination to follow the girl. He traces her to her home, has several stolen interviews with her before he is discovered by her uncle and threatened with exposure. But half in jest the uncle offers the lover one week of Georgiana's society as his guest on the condition that he surrender himself to the law at the expiration of the time. The week comes to an end; the woman intervenes and a midnight flight and hairbreadth escapes lead to a happy ending.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

SEPTEMBER 16, 1905.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

CAUTION NEEDED IN SUPPLYING BOOKS TO STRANGERS.

THE attention of the trade has been called, time and again, to the importance of exercising the utmost caution in supplying protected books to unknown and irresponsible parties. Notwithstanding this warning it occurs almost every week that even loyal supporters of the reform movement are taken off their guard, and that much mischief is done by others who are too weak to resist a tempting offer.

Only a short time ago a buyer for one of the Eastern undersellers approached a Western retail bookseller, an old acquaintance, with a proposal to send him a large consignment of books with which he intended to stock a new bookstore in Brooklyn, N. Y. The bookseller, who has always been prominent in the support of the reform movement, for the moment forgot himself and took the order. After he had shipped part of the goods, he made inquiry at the headquarters of the American Publishers' Association, and found to his chagrin that the party in question was the agent for an underseller, and that the address given was one of the stables of the concern that intended to undersell the books. Naturally, the remainder of the consignment was withheld; but, as about 900 books had already been forwarded, the underseller's concern was in a position to do some damage to the trade in its locality. In this case, had the bookseller in question made the inquiry before delivering the goods he might have been saved mortification, and his colleagues in the East might have been saved annoyance and loss. Indeed, the very fact that a person intending to start a bookstore in the East was making his purchases in the West alone should have aroused his suspicion.

If the trade would but remember that its enemies are forever at work to take advantage of their good nature or carelessness, and that these enemies leave no stone unturned nor hesitate to use every possible guise or subterfuge to obtain books, much harm would be obviated. Every publisher and every bookseller may know, without inquiry even, that a person representing himself as from a small town cannot use for himself 2500 copies of a recent work of fiction. Every one, without a moment's hesitation, may know that such books are intended for the undersellers' market. And yet it is a fact that some dealers have been in doubt in such cases, and actually intended to supply such orders when they received warning to desist.

Just now the agents of the undersellers are particularly active in and about New York, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Detroit, and Newport News, Va., and the trade is warned to be careful in dealing with strangers in these localities. Wherever possible it would be well to telephone or to telegraph to the manager of the American Publishers' Association, who is in a position often to give immediate reply. The Association in such cases is ready to defray the expense of telegraphing.

The reform movement depends upon the individual efforts of every one concerned in its integrity quite as much as upon concerted action. In order to cope with the antagonists of the reform movement it is necessary to exercise extreme caution and to report to headquarters every suspicious case.

THIS week witnessed two pleasant events in the lives of members of the trade. On Sunday, September 10, Mr. Henry Carey Baird quietly celebrated his eightieth birthday in his Philadelphia home. Mr. Baird, in point of descent and continuous connection with the book trade, may be considered its dean. Sprung from an illustrious ancestor, Mathew Carey, the champion of personal liberty, the friend of Lafayette and the early founders of our Republic, as well as a leader in early American book trade affairs, it is not strange that Mr. Baird should have become as famous as a defender of American institutions, as he has become as a leader in the trade that is honored in his associations with it. Age has not impaired Mr. Baird's lively interest in all that relates to his country's welfare or to the best traditions of the trade, and his arm is as ready and as strong as ever to strike a blow in their defense. On behalf of the book trade we offer congratulations to our friend and colleague.

THE other event was the celebration on the 11th instant of the golden anniversary of Mr. John H. Dingman's connection with the house of Scribner. Such occurrences in these days of unrest and continual change, and of the reign of the young man in business, are rare, and will become still rarer. Nevertheless, it is pleasant to note that length of service and staunch loyalty to his firm does count and meets with proper appreciation on the part of high-minded principals. The lovefeast on the occasion of Mr. Dingman's anniversary reflects quite as creditably upon the house of Scribner and Mr. Dingman's associates as it does upon the recipient. Such an act of courtesy cannot but help to bind still closer the relationship that must exist between the faithful worker and appreciative employer.

NEW METHODIST HYMN BOOK.

THE new Methodist Hymn Book, over which there has been so much discussion for the last five years, will come into general use in the Methodist Episcopal churches throughout the United States on Sunday, September 17. It contains more than 800 old and new hymns. Most of them are written by John Wesley, with Isaac Watts next, and a considerable number by Fanny Crosby, the blind authoress.

A new departure has been made by selecting hymns written by authors who were never known as religious writers. Among them are Sir Walter Scott, John Hay and Richard Watson Gilder. Rudyard Kipling's "Recessional" also appears in the book.

The last Methodist hymn books were compiled in 1878. For some years there has been much discussion over the words "washed in the blood of the Lamb" and other similar phrases. The setting of hymns to popular tunes was also objected to, but the negroes in the South, who are mostly Methodists, insisted on having the old Southern tunes that were in use before the war.

In 1900 Leslie M. Shaw, then Governor of Iowa, was one of the original three who signed a petition for a new hymnal, and in March, 1902, a committee of eleven delegates was appointed. The committee was to consider three points, which old hymns should be stricken out, which new ones were to be selected, and which old ones were to be revised. Two musical editors were added to the committee to assist in the argument over the tunes.

COLLIER'S EDITOR CHARGED WITH LIBEL.

ON a charge of criminal libel based on an editorial printed in Collier's Weekly Norman Hapgood, editor of that publication, was arrested on the 13th inst. at its offices, 416-424 West Thirteenth Street, New York City, on a warrant obtained by Justice Joseph M. Deuel, of the Special Sessions, and issued by Magistrate Steinert in Jefferson Market Court. Mr. Hapgood pleaded "Not guilty," and was paroled in the custody of his attorney until September 18. The basis of the charge on which the warrant was issued was an editorial printed in Collier's Weekly on August 5, for which Justice Deuel holds the defendant was and is responsible. The publication of the editorial, Justice Deuel alleges, exposed him to "hatred, contempt and obliquity." The editorial was printed under the heading "Public Conscience," and was a scathing arraignment of Justice Deuel. He was specifically charged with violating his oath of office in engaging in business while in his magisterial position. The editorial complained of was printed during and since the "America's Smart Set" and "Fads and Fancies" expositions. The methods of Town Topics, with which it is alleged Justice Deuel is associated in a business way, were made the subject of the editorial.

THE NEWSDEALERS' RESOLUTIONS.

THE following resolutions were passed at the close of the twenty-third annual convention of the National Association of Newsdealers, Booksellers and Stationers at Wilkes-Barré, Pa., August 30:

Resolved, That the newsdealers discourage the sale of any magazines that do not allow the dealer 30 per cent. on the retail price.

Resolved, That this association condemn the action of the publishers whose subscription prices are lower than the aggregated price per year—charged to the trade.

Resolved, That the executive committee shall revise the constitution and by-laws and report at 1906 convention.

Resolved, That all unsalaried officers shall be allowed railroad fares to and from executive meetings.

Resolved That we discourage the sale of Street & Smith's five cent Boys' Library, such as Young Rough Rider Weekly, Winner Library, Red Raven Library, and Frank Tousey's Young Athletic Library, as the publishers are unfair to the dealers.

Resolved, That the dealers take up the idea of magazine subscription club offers, to compete with such offers as are being made by the large subscription agents and other combinations. These offers will be available for all newsdealers upon application to the national association.

Resolved, That in the future conventions their association extend the privileges of honorable membership to such individuals as may be the pleasure of the delegates at large.

A "CABBAGE PATCH" BANK.

MRS. ALICE HEGAN RICE, author of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," has organized in Louisville, Ky., a new national bank with a capital stock of $250,000. Associated with her is her husband, Cale Young Rice, W. O. Head and L. M. Rice. What position Mrs. Rice will hold in the new financial concern has not been decided, though it is said that she will have some responsible post.

JOHN H. DINGMAN'S GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY.

UPWARDS of fifty years ago there came to New York City a youth from up State—Rensselaer County—eager to learn, impatient to become of some use in the world. Passing through the public school, he entered the New York Free Academy, or what is now called the College of the City of New York. Time dragged and, ever impatient as the boy was to be something and to do something worth while, he was naturally attracted to an advertisement of "A boy wanted in a book store." His credentials proving satiscomplimentary things. He then presented to Mr. Dingman a handsome silver loving cup, suitably inscribed.

In response, and at the request of his associates, Mr. Dingman made a lengthy address recalling to their memories some of the most striking events in the history of the house, and traced in a careful manner items of value concerning its earliest life. He also gave utterance to some of his own ideals and sentiments with regard to the aims and purposes secured by the house during his long career with it; then referred strongly to his expectations for its future and confidently predicted its further growth and prosperity.

factory John H. Dingman became office boy for Charles Scribner, Sr., at 36 Park Row in the building formerly occupied by the Brick Church, afterward the site of the New York Times building. It was on a Monday morning, September 10, 1855—nine years after the Scribner business had been started—that young Dingman joined the Scribner staff; and it was therefore that his associates met on the evening of the 11th inst. at the rooms of the Aldine Association, to greet him, and to do him honor on the eve of his entry upon the sixth decade's service in the ranks of the house which it was always his aim to honor and by hard work and enterprise to help place in the very front rank of the trade.

The anniversary celebration took place in the gaily decorated dining room of the Aldine Association, and was noteworthy for its sustained interest during the entire evening. Samuel W. Marvin acted as toastmaster, and conveyed to Mr. Dingman the hearty congratulations and good wishes of the whole staff of this great publishing house who were present in his honor, and said for them many

Other addresses were made by Mr. Mix, H. L. Smith, E. T. S. Lord, Mr. Stolle, and Mr. Offerd. Mr. Charles Scribner then arose and made the most marked address of the evening. Referring to the many important achievements of the house—which had been secured, he said, by the most strenuous efforts—he insisted that success could not have come but for the strong individual help of the many competent men who had occupied positions of responsibility and trust with his father, his brothers and himself. He urged this point of view with force and spoke with cordiality and intensity of his appreciation of it. He then turned to Mr. Dingman and in a very impressive manner thanked him for all the efforts he had made during these fifty years, and then, with a charm which is indescribable, added: "I speak in the name of those who are not here, and in the name of my brother Arthur and myself as well."

The silence which followed was intense, but was suddenly broken by the most pronounced applause and an audible expression of the pleasure of every one present over Mr.

Scribner's pronounced expression of his appreciation of the help given by the many men who have been connected with the house from its beginning.

Shortly after this, those present dispersed, but not until Mr. Dingman had referred feelingly to Mr. F. B. Mead, the former cashier, whose precarious state of health prevented his being present — and all present had voted to send good wishes over the sea to Mr. L. W. Bangs in London.

Mr. Dingman's services to the trade at large consisted in the preparation of a "Directory of Booksellers and Stationers in the United States and Canada," the first of its kind published in this country, which met a real need and became so popular and profitable that he issued it for four years, from 1870 to 1873. He was obliged to discontinue it because it took too much of his time from other important business engagements. In all the deliberations of the various trade organizations that have been called into existence in Mr. Dingman's time he took prominent part and contributed much to their success by his intelligent and practical views of the subjects that were presented for discussion. During the Civil War Mr. Dingman served as lieutenant in the Thirty-seventh Regiment N. Y. S. M. during its several enlistments. In church work he has been prominent, serving as superintendent of the Sunday-schools of several churches and as elder in the Reformed Church. He was for seven years a member of the Executive Committee of the Young Republican Club of Brooklyn, and in his social circle he was always a desired and welcome guest. All in all Mr. Dingman's life has been well rounded and to-day, notwithstanding the years that have passed over his head, he is as buoyant of spirit as he ever was, warm hearted and ever ready to lend a hand to his younger or weaker brethren.

PUBLIC PRINTER PALMER OUT.

FOR insubordination in disobeying his orders, President Roosevelt, on the 8th inst., ordered the summary and immediate removal of F. W. Palmer, head of the Government Printing Office at Washington. The President had previously asked for Palmer's resignation, to take effect on September 15.

Palmer's troubles grew out of the recent investigation of the contract for typesetting machines for the Government Printing Office. The contract was awarded to the Lanston Company, and the Mergenthaler Company, a rival concern, charged that unfair methods had been employed in making the award. During the investigation which followed two foremen in the department, Oscar J. Ricketts and L. C. Hay, gave testimony which was unfavorable to Palmer. After the investigation had been closed Palmer preferred charges of insubordination against the two foremen, and ordered them to appear before him on September 5 to show cause why they should not be removed from office.

When President Roosevelt learned of this he issued an order calling upon Palmer to tender his resignation to take effect on September 15. Pending this the President issued an order prohibiting Palmer from issuing any order to the employes of the department or in any way interfering with the working of the Government Printing Office.

On the 8th inst. the President was informed that Palmer nevertheless had ordered Ricketts and Hay to appear before him and answer charges. Mr. Roosevelt then issued the order removing him at once and placing Ricketts in temporary charge of the office.

President Roosevelt on the 10th inst. made public the report of the Keep Commission on its recent investigation of affairs in the Government Printing Office. The inquiry was made by special direction of the President on account of a protest which he had received from the officials of the Mergenthaler typesetting machine company against the award of a contract by Frank W. Palmer, the Public Printer, to the Lanston Monotype Company for seventy-two machines of its make. By order of the President, the contract with the Lanston Company was held up until an investigation could be made, with a view to ascertaining whether the charges of favoritism and corruption in the letting of the contract were substantially founded.

The text of the President's memorandum approving the report, a formidable document of 16,000 words, is as follows:

"The conclusions of the committee are hereby approved, save the latter part of Conclusion 1. It does not appear that there is any question as to the validity of the contract in question. If it had not been for the conduct of the Mergenthaler company in preferring the charge discussed by the committee in Conclusion 2, that of corruption, I should agree with the committee that it would be desirable to set aside the contract, if such a course were legal. But second only to corruption in a public officer in point of iniquity comes making a baseless charge of corruption, and this is what the committee finds the Mergenthaler company has done in this case, its comments being in part:

In the light of the failure of the company to produce evidence of such corruption, it must be held that the charge was made recklessly, and the Mergenthaler company should be severely condemned for including such a charge in a formal communication to the President of the United States, made as a basis for official action on his part. It is fair also to the Lanston Monotype Company to say that no evidence was produced by the Mergenthaler Company, nor was any obtained by the committee in the course of its hearing, tending to show any promise, payment or consideration of any kind whatsoever made by the Lanston Company, or any of its officers or agents, to any person in the government service.

"Had not this charge of corruption been made, I should have entirely agreed with the conclusion of the committee that if it were possible (which it is not) it would be desirable to cancel the contract in question.

"Public Printer Palmer has been removed from office. The cases of the subordinates alluded to in the report must be taken up in connection with the discipline and reorganization of the bureau when Mr. Palmer's successor assumes office."

They also announce a new Shakespeare in eight volumes, illustrated in photogravure, and containing many special features, such as a full selection of the best annotations, an essay by Cradock on the learning of Shakespeare, and Dr. Johnson's famous Introduction.

They have in press a New England story, entitled "Sarah Bernhardt Brown," a companion volume to "Quincy Adams Sawyer," which will be issued in October. They report that "Quincy Adams Sawyer" has reached a sale of 253,000 copies, and that they anticipate for the new book fully as wide a patronage.

L. C. PAGE & Co. have just brought out "The Flight of Georgiana," a romantic novel by Robert Neilson Stephens; "The Grapple," by Grace MacGowan Cooke, a story based on the labor question; also, the following books for young readers: "The Roses of St. Elizabeth," a tale of the old castle of Wartburg, by Jane Scott Woodruff; "The Three Weavers" and "In the Desert of Waiting," two stories by Annie Fellows Johnston, which originally appeared in The Little Colonel series, and are now published in separate binding.

THE CENTURY Co. has in press for fall issue "Washington the Promoter," the first printing in toto of the diary kept by George Washington for September, 1784, during his journey in the Ohio Basin in the interest of a commercial union between the Great Lakes and the Potomac River. The commentary upon this interesting text has been prepared by Archer Butler Hulbert, author of "Historic Highways of America." They have also in press a volume entitled "How to Study Pictures," by Charles H. Caffin, the art critic, which is intended for those who wish to look at and enjoy pictures intelligently.

D. APPLETON & Co. will publish on the 22d inst. "Time, the Comedian," by Kate Jordan, a novel, with the scenes laid chiefly in Paris, which demonstrates the unwisdom of love letters and the fact that a man's past will always materially interfere with his future; "Patricia, a Mother," an interesting account of the struggle of a mother to win her son and to save him from himself, by an anonymous author, who writes under the pseudonym of "Iota;" also, "He and Hecuba," a new story by the Baroness von Hutten, dealing with the fascinations of a volatile Spanish woman and the pride and passions of a minister of the gospel.

THE JOHN LANE COMPANY announce the work of Professor Edward von Wertheimer on the life and fortunes of Napoleon's ill-starred son, "The Duke of Reichstadt." The Duke is perhaps most intimately known to English readers as the hero of Rostand's "L'Aiglon." Though he died too young to find scope for his qualities as a prince, which seem to have been of a high order, and though he was always constrained by his embarrassing position between two destinies, his death was a severe blow to the aspirations of those Frenchmen who, in the Duke's death, thought they had lost a guarantee against the aggressions of foreign powers that they were hardly likely to have again.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. will publish on the 21st inst. "On Two Continents," by Mrs. Bayard Taylor; "Life and Religion," by Max Muller; "The Jewish Spectre," by George H. Warner; "Concerning Belinda," by Eleanor Hoyt; "The Golden Heart," by Violet Jacob; "The Tree Book," by Julia E. Rogers; Part v. of the "Dog Book," by James Watson; and the Home Library of law, in six volumes, by Albert S. Bolles, which is intended to be a work of practical legal information for the use of intelligent citizens who at one time or another may be involved in relations with the State. They have in preparation a new book by John S. Wise, entitled "Recollections of Thirteen Presidents," ranging from Tyler to Roosevelt.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. will publish in October "The Ballingtons," by Frances Squire, a novel by a new author likely to attract more than the usual attention. It is a story of modern social relations, worked out with daring logic and its solution is bold and unmis-takable. The author in private life is Mrs. Frances Squire Potter, a member of the faculty of the University of Minnesota, Minneapolis. They also announce for next month Captain A. T. Mahan's important new contribution to American history, entitled "Sea Power in Its Relations to the War of 1812," in two volumes, superbly illustrated. They announce a second printing of Roger Pocock's "Curly, a Tale of the Arizona Desert," which has been termed "the best Western story since 'The Virginian.'"

At the regular monthly meeting of the trustees of the Stationers' Board of Trade, held on Tuesday, the 12th inst., Henry C. Bainbridge, of Charles T. Bainbridge's Sons, the president, who is also first vice-president of the National Association of Stationers and Manufacturers of the United States of America, was appointed as the Board's representative to the first annual convention of the National Association, to be held at St. Louis on the 10th, 11th and 12th of October, with power to appoint other delegates from the association to said convention. At the same meeting the following firms having applied for membership in the Board were unanimously elected: American Writing Paper Co., Holyoke, Mass.; W. L. Mason & Co., Keene, N. H., and Grosset & Dunlap, New York City.

A. S. BARNES & Co. have just ready a new novel by S. R. Crockett, entitled "The Cherry Ribband," a story with plenty of incident and adventure, which is dedicated to the readers of "The Lilac Sunbonnet," the novel that made the author famous, because "The Cherry Ribband" is a return to the manner and quality of the former book. The book is illustrated by Claude Shepperson. They will publish on the 22d inst. "Squire Phin," the first long novel by Holman F. Day, who has gained a wide reputation as a writer of verse. The story describes life in a Maine country village, depicting the quaint old characters among whom "Squire Phin" takes the leading part. There is in the book much delicious comedy occasionally touched with the dramatic and pathetic. There are a number of illustrations by John Rae.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT Co. have just published a Standard edition of "The Canterbury Pilgrimages," which especially commends itself by its clear printing, convenient size and lavish and trustworthy illustration; "Chats on Violins," by Olga Ragster, which tells the early history of the violin and all its great makers from Gaspar di Salo and Amati to Stradivarius; "Letters to a Debutante," capital little chapters on topics that appeal to the young women of the day, by Lady Jephson; and "The Life of Mary, Queen of Scots, by Hilda T. Skae, with illustrations of the famous buildings and neighborhoods in which the ill-fated queen spent her life. There will also be new editions of Robert Louis Stevenson's "Edinburgh" and Andrew Lang's "Oxford," "Natural History in Zoological Gardens," by Frank E. Beddard, will give an account of 117 animals and is almost ready for publication.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish in October a very attractive book for the holidays by E. Boyd Smith, entitled "Noah's Ark." The author tells what happened when Noah tried to gather together the animals and build on land a ship to carry them. As might have been expected, Noah's experiences were exasperating and funny to the last degree. He had strikes while he was building the ship, he had to overcome the disbelief of his people, and he was hopelessly put out by the difficulty of preventing the cats from catching the mice, and the dogs from chasing the cats. Mr. Smith has told the story in a series of twenty-six colored illustrations overflowing with humor, while the brief text, by its dry and solemn tone, only serves to increase the fun. He has struck a really new vein in animal books, and the result is as amusing to a man of fifty as to a child of ten. The illustrations are exquisitely drawn and finely reproduced in color, in the style of Boutet de Monvel.

McCLURE, PHILLIPS & Co. announce for publication during the fall season "My Friend the Chauffeur," by C. N. and A. N. Williamson; "The Work of Our Hands," by Mrs. H. A. Mitchell Keays; "The Ancient Landmark," by Elizabeth Cherry Waltz; "The Pang Yanger," by Elma A. Travis; "Told by Uncle Remus," by Joel Chandler Harris; "The Fortunes of the Landrays," by Vaughn Kester; "The Complete Golfer," by Harry Vardon; "Foster's Complete Bridge," by R. F. Foster; "Plunkitt of Tammany Hall," edited by W. L. Riordan; "I. N. R. L.: a Prisoner's Story of the Cross," by Peter Rosegger; "A Modern Symposium," by G. Lowes Dickinson; "The Mysterious Stranger, and Other Cartoons," by John T. McCutcheon; "The Horse in America," by John Gilmer Speed; "Franklin in History," by William Macdonald; "The Cost of Competition," by Sidney A. Reeve; "The Wives of Henry VIII.," by Martin Hume; "Bible History," by Professor X. Koenig; and "The Torch," by Professor George Edward Woodberry.

THE PENN PUBLISHING COMPANY, Philadelphia, have in press two books which will have more than ordinary interest for young people. One of these is for girls, written by Margaret Warde, and entitled "Betty Wales, Sophomore." Those who knew the heroine as a freshman will find Betty Wales even more entertaining during her second year in college than she was during her first year in college. At any rate the delightful atmosphere of the American girl pervades the whole book, which is attractively illustrated by E. M. Nagel. The second book referred to is for boys, entitled "A Plebe at West Point," by Captain Paul B. Malone, U. S. A. In this book the further adventures of the hero of "Winning His Way to West Point" are vividly described, and, incidentally, much light is thrown on the hazing incidents at the national military academy so much discussed a few years ago. "Andy," published by this firm last year, is still selling well. It is a good book that ought to score a sale of 100,000 copies before the year is over.

HARPER & BROTHERS have brought out this week Mrs. Thurston's much-talked-of new novel, "The Gambler," a story with a well-knit, engrossing plot, full of dramatic situations, and developed with the same skill and charm of narration that made her "Masquerader" so popular. They have also just ready under the title of "Transformation into a Nation," the two volumes needed to complete the second general division of The American Nation for class room use. This history has been adopted for text book and reference purposes by Yale, Harvard and a score of other large universities and colleges. The ninth and tenth volumes of the work are just off the press, the ninth being entitled "The American Revolution," by Professor Claude Halstead Van Tyne, of the University of Michigan, and the tenth, "The Confederation and the Constitution," by Andrew C. McLaughlin, director of the Bureau of Historical Research, Carnegie Institute, Washington. They have about ready a new volume of funny sketches by Mark Twain, entitled "Editorial Wild Oats."

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY have just ready "St. Cuthbert's," a "first novel," by Dr. R. E. Knowles, the orator and wit of the Presbyterian Church of Canada. The author is just returning from a summer in England and Scotland to his parish in Galt, Ontario, where he preaches to the largest Presbyterian congregation in Canada, for Galt, though only a small town of barely 8000 inhabitants, is known as the "Gibraltar of Scotch Presbyterianism." They will bring out shortly "Modern India," by William Eleroy Curtis, to which the recent turn of events adds a spice of timeliness; "A World Without a Child," by Coulson Kernahan, author of "God and the Ant," etc., in which the author in a plain way handles the question of race suicide when followed out to its ideal conclusion; also, an anthology of prose and poetry, entitled "A Mother's Year," containing selections from a wide range of authors who have touched on the subject of motherhood, from Charles Dickens to Whitcomb Riley and President Roosevelt, compiled by Helen Russ Stough and illustrated and decorated by Sarah K. Smith.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. publish to-day new editions of Louisa M. Alcott's "Under the Lilacs" and "Jack and Jill," with illustrations by Alice Barber Stephens and Harriet Roosevelt Richards, respectively, completing their set of the Illustrated Little Women Series; the Pasadena edition of "Ramona," by Helen Hunt Jackson, with photogravure portrait of the author and sixteen full-page plates, etc., by Henry Sandham; also, a new edition of "Pericles and Aspasia," by Walter Savage Landor, with photogravure frontispiece and title. They have also just ready a series of holiday art sets, including masterpieces of literature and choicely illustrated works in sets of two volumes, handy in size, moderate in price, artistically bound in cloth and neatly boxed, as follows: "Poems of Dante Gabriel Rossetti," "Famous Actors and Actresses and Their Homes," by Gustav Kobbé; "Little Masterpieces," by Alphonse Daudet; "Old Colonial Scenes and Homes," illustrated by Edmund H. Garrett; "Quo Vadis," by Henryk Sienkiewicz; "Elizabethan and Victorian Songs," illustrated by Edmund H. Garrett; and "French Painters and Paintings," by Philip Gilbert Hamerton.

H. R. ALLENSON, 1 Ivy Lane, Paternoster Row, London, has just published a reprint of "The History of the Rev. Doctor John Tauler of Strasbourg, with Twenty-five of his Sermons, translated from the German, with additional notices of Tauler's life and times, by Susanna Winkworth, and a preface by Charles Kingsley." Tauler was a German Dominican monk, born in Strasbourg some time between 1290 and 1300, who took sides with the Emperor Frederick, and for some time was intimately associated with the Gottesfreunde, (Friends of God.) He was in Strasbourg in 1348, when that city was devastated by the Black Death, encouraging its citizens by sermons and personal visitations. Tauler's theology represents the purest and highest type of German mysticism, and by insisting upon personal relationship to God, freedom from the thralldom of authority, and the worthlessness of mere good works without the renewal of the inward life, represents a tendency in theology which found full expression in the Reformation of the sixteenth century. Tauler's sermons are among the noblest in the German language, and touch on all sides the deeper problems of the moral and spiritual life.

A. C. McCLURG & Co. will publish this fall about thirty titles, covering a wider range than their offerings of any previous season. Conspicuous in the list will be "Ben Blair," a rugged and forceful story of the West, by Will Lillibridge, and "A Sword of the Old Frontier," a new story by Randall Parrish, both of which have already been described by us. Besides these they announce a handsomely made book entitled "Shelley in Italy," by Mrs. McMahon, which will be a companion volume to her successful "Florence in the Poetry of the Brownings" of last year; "The Land of the Strenuous Life," a translation of Abbé Felix Klein's "Au Pays de la Vie Intense," in which the French scholar's impressions of America are entertainingly presented; "Far Eastern Impressions," by Ernest F. G. Hatch, some interesting and pertinent notes by a business man on Japan, Corea and China; "Arts and Crafts of Old Japan," a popular introduction to the study of a branch of Japanese genius which has led the world for centuries; and the fifth revised edition of Mr. Clements's "Handbook of Modern Japan." They have also in preparation a number of promising "juveniles," including a new fairy book by Mrs. Carter Harrison, "The Moon Princess," with illustrations by Lucy Fitch Perkins, and also a new Holiday edition of that famous classic, "Widow O'Callaghan's Boys," illustrated in color by Florence Scovel Shinn; several beautiful gift books which are likely to be very popular.

JOHN W. LUCE & COMPANY announce for fall publication "The Foolish Almanac," uniform in size and style with the "Foolish Dictionary," containing original and humorous information regarding astronomical phenomena, chronological data, weather, tides, etc., together with hints on farming, beauty, health, exercise, household affairs, etc.; "Intimate Letters of the Presidents," a volume containing an epistle by each President of the United States from Washington up to and including Roosevelt, each being selected with a view to showing the personal side of the man, compiled by Lewis Perry, assistant professor of English literature at Williams College; "The Plays of Oscar Wilde," in two volumes, consisting of "The Importance of Being Earnest," "A Woman of No Importance," "An Ideal Husband," and Lady Windermere's Fan; "George Bernard Shaw: His Plays," entertainingly describing all of the Shaw plays, their plots and themes, their characters, with side lights on the much-discussed Shaw purpose in each play and character, written by Henry L. Mencken, dramatic critic of the Baltimore Herald; also, "All by Wire," a telegraphic explanation of a telepathic union of hearts, intended as a holiday novelty gift book, by Frank P. Sibley. Although the "Foolish Dictionary" is in its second fall season, it is reported to be exceeding its last year's remarkable record in matter of popularity. "Foolish Finance," by the same author, Gideon Wurdz, which was issued the past summer, has already gone into the third edition.

THE ARTHUR H. CLARK COMPANY, Cleveland, announce a limited edition, of 350 copies, of "Magellan's Voyage Around the World," by Antonio Pigafetta. The translation was made by James A. Robertson, of the editorial staff of "The Jesuit Relations," and co-editor of "The Philippine Islands, 1493-1898," direct from the Italian manuscript of the sixteenth century, belonging to the Ambrosian library at Milan. Pigafetta accompanied Magellan on his famous voyage and kept a faithful record of his observations on the geography, climate and resources of the strange countries visited or described to him. An edition of this work in French was first published about 1525. An Italian edition appeared in Milan, in 1800, another French edition, translated by Dr. Amoretti, the editor of the Italian edition of 1800, appeared in Paris a year later; in 1874 the Hakluyt Society brought out an English translation with notes by Lord Stanley of Alderly, and another English version appeared in the eleventh volume of Pinkerton's voyages. The Amoretti and the Stanley editions are said to be made from a defective French manuscript of later date, and omit many passages of importance. As the present translation, made in person by Mr. Robertson at Milan, is from what is supposed to be a correct version of text, it is claimed that the work for the first time appears in English in complete form. Mr. Robertson has annotated the work comprehensively, and gives a rare map and the numerous original charts in careful reproductions.

HENRY HOLT & Co. have in preparation a work on "Trades Unions in America," edited, with an introductory chapter, by Professor J. H. Hollander, of Johns Hopkins, including original investigations concerning printers, cigar makers, iron moulders, machinists, employers' associations, building trades, railways, the Knights of Labor, and the American Federation of Labor, by graduate students and officers of that university; a book on the negro in American politics, treating of the negro question from the beginning of the slave trade to the Tuskegee school, by George S. Merriam, author of "Samuel Bowles," etc., which originally attracted wide and favorable attention as it appeared in instalments in the Springfield Republican; "Extinct Animals," by the well-known authority, Professor E. Ray Lankester, of the British Museum, based on the author's popular lectures, and fully illustrated; "Animal Snapshots and How Made," by Silas A. Lottridge, being some very remarkable photographs accompanied by simple papers on the raccoon, opossum, woodchuck, squirrels, fox, bluebird, robin, owls, hawks, etc., with suggestions for photographing animals; a "popular" book on hygiene, by Dr. Edward Curtis; the second volume, "Geologic History," of Chamberlin and Salisbury's monumental "Geology," the first volume of Stopford Brooke's "Lectures on Shakespeare," covering "The Midsummer Night's Dream," "Winter's Tale," "The Merchant of Venice," "As You Like It," "Richard II.," "Richard III.," "Macbeth," "The Tempest," "Romeo and Juliet" and "Coriolanus."

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. have in press a volume entitled "The Secret of the Totem," by Andrew Lang, who attempts to establish the origin and trace the evolution of Totemism in primitive society; "The Poor and the Land," the report on the Salvation Army Colonies in America and at Hadleigh, in Essex, Eng., recently made by H. Rider Haggard to the Colonial Office in his capacity as commissioner; "Lectures on Medieval English History," by Bishop William Stubbs, edited by Arthur Hassall; also, "Everyday Life

Among the Headhunters," by Dorothy Cator, who has travelled where no other white woman has ever been, and who has lived among practically unknown tribes in Borneo and in Africa. They will publish at once a volume on "Wild Fowl," by L. H. de Visme Shaw, with chapters on shooting the duck and the goose, by W. H. Pope, and on cookery, by Alexander Innes Shand, with illustrations; "Medieval and Modern History," by Professor Henry E. Bourne, of the Western Reserve University; "Principles of Economics, with special reference to American conditions," by Professor Edwin R. A. Seligman, of Columbia University; also, "St. John and the Close of the Apostolic Age," by the Abbé Constant Fouard, the final volume in the series of The Beginnings of the Church. They will bring out next month a new volume by Stanley J. Weyman, entitled "Starve-crow Farm," the scene of which is laid in northern England, in 1819, when the working classes, impoverished through the long conflict with Napoleon, were in a state bordering on rebellion; also, "The Red Book of Romance," edited by Andrew Lang, with illustrations in color and in black and white.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will publish shortly a work on "Tibet and Turkestan," by Oscar Terry Crosby, which receives added interest through the resignation of Lord Curzon, because Mr. Crosby discusses in no uncertain, though non-partisan, terms what he refers to as "the British attack on Tibet;" "The Romance of the French Abbess," by Mrs. Elizabeth Williams Champney, with illustrations by the author's late husband, J. Wells Champney, who made France his second home and who planned the four books, including the present, thus far brought out by Mrs. Champney; "Louis XIV. and la Grande Mademoiselle," by Arvede Barine, whose former work, "The Youth of la Grande Mademoiselle," has had an unusual success; a "life" of Hermann von Helmholtz, prepared by Dr. Hermann Knapp, the distinguished New York oculist and medical editor, based largely on the biography by the Geheimrath Königsberger, which is now running as a serial in the Archives of Ophthalmology; "In Thamesland," by Henry Wellington Wack, author of "The Story of the Congo Free State," etc., which gives a gossip account of the author's numerous rambles and voyages along the river Thames; also, a new edition of Professor Charles Francis Richardson's well-known manual, "The Choice of Books," which will contain a supplement entitled "Suggestions for Libraries," giving selected lists of books of reference, history, biography and literature, with the best current editions, notes and prices. They are bringing out the Federal edition of "The Writings of Abraham Lincoln," edited by Arthur Brooks Lapsley, which includes the full text of the Lincoln-Douglas debates, together with the Essay on Lincoln, by Carl Schurz; the Address on Lincoln, by Joseph H. Choate, and the Life of Lincoln, by Noah Brooks. The edition is limited to 1000 signed and numbered sets. It will be issued in a set of about eight volumes. The editor is a Harvard man of scholarly historical knowledge. He will supply brief footnotes throughout the text. The works are to be illustrated with upwards of 100 photogravure and other illustrations, chiefly important portraits of Lincoln, and contemporary portraits of Lincoln's generals, cabinet members and associations in public and private life. Facsimiles of important letters and documents will make the work notable among the books devoted to great Americans.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY will publish shortly a volume on "Normandy," with forty pictures of scenes in that romantic country, reproduced in colors from paintings made by Nico Jungman, and text by Miss G. E. Mitton, who was one of Sir Walter Besant's collaborators in his great work on London; "Heart's Desire," by Emerson Hough, a novel the action of which takes place in a little mountain town in New Mexico, in the days when that country was a "Land Before the Law;" "A Self-Supporting Home," by Mrs. Kate V. Saint Maur, in which the author tells her readers how she established such a home, without capital, on a small farm, and gives all the details of the care of poultry and pet stock and other creatures, together with many new wrinkles in the successful and easy cultivation of a vegetable garden. They also announce a one-volume edition of "The Memoir of Alfred Tennyson, by His Son," and new and cheaper editions in one volume of Marion Crawford's "Southern Italy and Sicily and the Rulers of the South" and "Ave Roma Immortalis," both of which are profusely illustrated. The first volume of the new edition of "The Life and Writings of Benjamin Franklin," edited by Professor Albert H. Smith, of Philadelphia, will be brought out in the first week of October. They have in preparation a text-book on the "History of Education," by Professor Paul Monroe, of the Teachers' College, Columbia University, whose aim is to emphasize the great typical educational movements in thought and practice, and to afford very definite conceptions of comparatively few leaders; "Character of Renaissance Architecture," by Charles Herbert Moore, professor of art at Harvard, which consists in a discussion of the structural and artistic character of Renaissance architecture, with a brief preliminary consideration of the meaning of the Renaissance movement, (1420-1600,) and a comparison of its animating motives with those which had given form to the arts of the Middle Ages, illustrated from photographs, drawings and diagrams; a limited large-paper edition of the works of Maurice Hewlett, in ten volumes, uniform with the édition de luxe of the works of Walter Pater, the first volume of which, "Richard Yea-and-Nay," will be brought out in October; also, the following new novels: "Coniston," by Winston Churchill; "Fair Margaret: a Portrait," by F. Marion Crawford; "Yolanda," by Charles Major; "The Road Builders," by Samuel Merwin; "Helianthus," by "Ouida;" "The Jungle," by Upton Sinclair; and "Lady Baltimore," by Owen Wister.

FALL ANNOUNCEMENTS

THE WOMAN OF TO-MORROW. By Helen M. Winslow. $1.00 net. (Postage 8 cents)
A readable, sensible, serious, humorous bit of writing. Its optimism is infectious and holds the attention both of men and women.

WOMEN OF WIT AND BEAUTY OF THE TIME OF GEORGE IV. By John Fyvie. Illustrated. $3.00 net. (Postage 12 cents.)

Mr. Fyvie has written frankly, though circumspectly, of such women as Nelson's "Lady Hamilton," the unacknowledged wife of George IV., and the "Hon. Mrs. Norton." Reliable information about these women, whose lives are more like romance than truth, has never before been printed.

ASPECTS OF BALZAC. By W. H. Helm. $1.00 net. (Postage 8 cents.)

Mr. Helm's comprehensive review of the work of the great Frenchman should do more than anything hitherto published to make appreciation of Balzac universal. There is a simplicity of treatment that commends the book. And the list of "Aspects" include such subjects as Balzac's method, his men, his women, his humor.

RUSSIA UNDER THE GREAT SHADOW.

By Luigi Villari. 8vo, cloth, 85 illustrations, $3.50 net. (Postage 18 cents.)

This book is considered the strongest piece of work that Villari has yet given us. Its treatment of Nihilism in its relation to the future of the Czar's people is intimate and thrilling.

THE ESSENTIALS OF SPIRITUALITY.

By Felix Adler. $1.00 net. (Postage 8c.)

This book crystallizes Dr. Adler's teaching throughout his long service as an apostle of Ethical Culture. Dr. Adler has produced comparatively few books, and none of recent years to which he has given such minute preparation.

MAKERS OF MODERN HISTORY. Napoleon III, Cavour, Bismarck. By the Hon. Edward Cadogan. $2.25 net. (Postage 12 cents.)

Mr. Cadogan chooses the three because their illustrious names are more than any associated with the great struggle between conservative principles and the revolutionary forces of constitutional or national liberty in which lies the chief interest of European history in the Nineteenth Century.

THE JAPANESE SPIRIT. By Okakura-Yoshisaburo. With an Introduction by George Meredith. $1.00 net. (Postage 8 cents.)

Mr. Okakura tells in brief résumé what he considers the essentials to an understanding of modern Japan, its political, religious and social qualities of basic importance.
